New Chess Course – Opening Repertoire

See the article at the end of this newsletter for a new class being developed around “The Chess Advantage in Black and White”, by IM Larry Kaufman. Noted chess authority John Watson in reviewing this best seller... “It is simply the best comprehensive repertoire book that I have ever read.” (See his review, #67 In the Beginning There Was Theory, at <http://www.chesscenter.com/twic/jwatsonbkrev67.html>).

MetroWest Chess Club 22nd Anniversary

Join us in celebrating the club’s 22nd birthday by entering the May tournament – 5 rounds and $1000 in prizes.

Stateline Chess (bookseller Partner)

I’ll be there for round 1 – Randi Malcuit -- See the special event on Sunday May 22 with IM James Rizzitano!

Harvard Open is back!

See the calendar below, flyers on our home page.

Family Teams

Family teams can now "avoid pairings" in all sections except the Open section!

From the Editor:

I’m still traveling. James Krycka is still helping, and we still need a volunteer that knows how to operate MS Word, and can help put it together each month, from templates.

It’s not hard, and we’ll work as a team. Please contact me if you can volunteer 2-3 hours per month.

COMPETE :: Club Championship

Charles Riordan and David Harris have moved into the top 10. Igor Foygel and John Curdo continue to sit atop the standings, but there is a close race for the 3rd to 10th spots. After four events, the leaders of the 2006 Club championship qualification point standings are as follows:

1.	IM Igor Foygel		219
2.	FM John Curdo		131
3.	IM James Rizzitano		60
4.	Ilya Krasik		53
5.	Niki Konovalchuk		50
6.	NM Charles Riordan		48

7.	Matthew Phelps		42
8.	John Chamberlain		40
9.	David Harris		39
10.	Mark La Rocca		38

COMPETE :: Class Championship

There was no change in the first 8 positions this month. Larry Eldridge and Mark Fins moved into 9th and 10th place after splitting first place in the U1850 section. Only 5 points separate placements 4 through 10. After four months of play, the leaders of the 2006 Class (U2000) championship qualification point standings are as follows:

1.	Niki Konovalchuk		50
2.	Matthew Phelps		42
3.	Tarmo Saar		35
4.	Farzad Abdi		23
5.	John Stengrevics		23

NEW! Developing an Opening Repertoire

(details about dates, etc. still being developed by Howard Goldowsky and Mark LaRocca)

Please send email to Mark LaRocca if you want to signup for the class. We need to estimate the attendance. Mark_LaRocca AT cca-int.com

Of course, it is impossible to offer a concise repertoire that offers the advantage to White against every response, or, conversely, offers Black certain equality. But, striving towards that goal is, in itself, exceptionally challenging and useful in developing our chess understanding and knowledge. In this first series of six classes, we will begin the journey to solidify our opening play and perhaps, in the process, discover a suitable chess style that can serve us well throughout our amateur careers.

The basic text we will investigate is “The Chess Advantage in Black and White”, by IM Larry Kaufman. Noted chess authority John Watson in reviewing this best seller... “It is simply the best comprehensive repertoire book that I have ever read.” (See his review, #67 In the Beginning There Was Theory, at <http://www.chesscenter.com/twic/jwatsonbkrev67.html>) Watson considers this book suitable for players rated 1400 to 2100 and “even Grandmasters” could learn something from reading it. I will try to accommodate players rated a little lower and provide material of interest to those who aspire to Master level. Mr. Watson goes on to give legitimate criticism on specific variations. His analysis should prove useful in expanding our own study since in class we will delve more deeply into Mr. Kaufman’s ideas. The interested student should read this review carefully.

We cannot cover Mr. Kaufman’s entire 500 pages of analysis in just six classes; thus, my reference to this as the “First series”. Therefore, I have chosen to begin our study as outlined below. The first two classes will investigate a popular “anti-Sicilian”, 3.Bb5... system for White against most Black Sicilian defenses, and an alternate recommendation when 3.Bb5... is not appropriate. In the next four classes we will concentrate on Black’s response to 1.d4... 1.Nf3... 1.c4... or any non-e4 first move by White. The basis of Mr. Kaufman’s recommendation is the Semi-Slav defense; but, in reality, it goes well beyond just the scope of this defense.

In his book Mr. Kaufman advocates 1.e4 for white and 1...e5 against e4 with a Semi-Slav against 1.d4, more specifically, White: Spanish Exchange, Bb5 against the Sicilian, French Tarrasch and Caro Kann advance. For black, Berlin against the Spanish and a Semi Slav set up against 1.d4....

Whether or not you intend to play Mr. Kaufman’s system, a serious student of chess must understand the openings he recommends. If you play the English as white, you must understand the Semi-Slav setup. If you play the Sicilian, you must know how to combat 3.Bb5... systems. If you ever hope to accomplish anything in chess, you must grasp the basics of the Ruy Lopez. And, in general, you must understand the principles of classic chess Mr. Kaufman uses to help the student understand who has the advantage... two Bishops, pawn structure, and space. In this class we will offer expanded theory and instruction to be used as a starting point for further study. A detailed course outline is provided below.

Guest Appearances
